Planner Desires East I-27 Route

This is what Marvin Springer was talking about Tuesday night when he told commissioners that some of the drainage land surrounding Canyon is being used for a dump ground. These construction scraps have been unloaded behind Canyon High School.

A Dallas city planning consultant recommended Tuesday that proposed highway Interstate 27 take an easterly route around Canyon.

Marvin Springer appeared before a joint session of the city commission and planning and zoning commission.

He recommended that the proposed interstate be routed about one mile east of the present city limits to allow for orderly growth of the city in that direction.

Springer predicted a doubling in Canyon's population by 1990 and said he foresees the greatest growth in a pattern developing in a semi-circle to the east, north and south.

This growth pattern, he said, is based on an assumption that the highway loop around Canyon will go east of the city.

Springer is on the last legs of preparing a comprehensive plan for the city, a plan which maps out future development possibilities.

"In terms of people, Canyon's population in 1990 will be about 15,000, I think, and Randall County's population will be about 85,000," he said.

He said the most significant factor in the city affecting growth will be West Texas State University's enrollment.

He foresees a Canyon population of 12,000 by 1980.

With this in mind, Springer said, the city must begin planning for a future city which will be twice the size of the present town.

In relation to this, he said, the location of I-27 will have great impact. He said the easterly route seems the most logical for the Texas Highway Department to take.

With the highway taking an easterly route, Springer said the population would-as it does now-have a tendency to swing easterly.

This, in itself, presents problems, he warned, because Canyon is surrounded by drainage areas on three sides-to the north, south and east.

But, he said, the drainage areas can be used to the advantage of the city.

"These drainage areas could offer a constricting effect," he said, "but I don't think this will be true."

The city must plan uses for the drainage areas by including parks and agriculture and recreational areas in future plans.

But, Springer warned that the drainage areas could also become nothing more than dump grounds. He said he has already noticed dumping occurring along Tierra Blanca Creek south of the city.

"You have the opportunity to have one of the most distinct physical layouts of any town in the Panhandle," he said. "To do this, after the see PLANNER, page 12

A couple passes through the refreshment line Tuesday night during the President's annual reception for graduates of West Texas State University. President and Mrs. James P. Corne are hosts of the reception. Graduation for WTSU is tonight in Amarillo's Civic Center coliseum.

Graduation For University Tonight At Civic Center

A record 439 students will cross the stage at 8 p.m. today to receive degrees from West Texas State University. The commencement will be in the Amarillo Civic Center Coliseum.

Dr. J. Paschal Twyman, 36, of the University of Tulsa will deliver the commencement address. He is one of the nation's youngest college presidents.

Dr. James P. Corne, president of WTSU, will confer the degrees on the graduates.

He and Mrs. Corne, along with other university officials, received the graduates, their dates and parents Tuesday night at the formal President's Reception on campus.

Tonight, 212 students will receive bachelor of science degrees, 25 will receive bachelor of arts degrees, 57 will receive bachelor of business administration degrees, four will receive bachelor of music education degrees, 35 will receive master of arts, 4 master of science, 17 master of business administration and 85 master of education. Last year, the university conferred 369 degrees during summer convocation.

Dr. Twyman was appointed president of the University of Tulsa in 1968, just a year after he joined the institution as vice president for research and development. He received a bachelor of arts degree in 1955, a master of arts in educational administration in 1959 and a doctor of philosophy in education in 1962. All degrees were from the University of Missouri-Kansas City.

Senior and junior high students will receive their class schedules and locker assignments at the time of registration.

Certain fees are to be paid at registration at all schools.

Fees required at the junior high include a $2 activity fee and a 50 cent reading lab fee. These are required for all students, Corley said. The activity fee covers the student handbook and the all-school party which is scheduled for the end of the year.

Other fees at the junior high include $1.50 for art students and $1.50 for shop students.

Students may rent locks for their lockers for 50 cents, Corley said.

Corley added that all seventh graders must have their health certificates and birth certificates at the time of registration.

County Judge Critical Of Air Board Decision

County Judge Carroll Brown criticized the Texas Air Control Board for its action concerning the Amarillo smelter plant during a commissioners court meeting Monday.

Brown attended last week's air control board meeting in Austin as an official representative of the Randall County commissioners. The board met to consider the future of the American Smelting and Refining Company's plant in Amarillo.

At that hearing, the board gave ASARCO 30 days to solve its air pollution problems.

"I don't think the board was sure what they were ruling on," Brown told commissioners.

He said the hearing examiner, who held a public hearing in Amarillo several weeks ago, presented a statement to the air control board which was "a statement of conclusions rather than evidence."

"The board should review the evidence, not just take the hearing examiner's word," Brown said.

The judge warned that if "we don't fight as vigilantly as possible, we may get run over."

Brown charged that the air control board members didn't read a report prepared by the hearing examiner on the testimony at the Amarillo hearing.

"Even so, they said they were going ahead to decide now," he said.

Commissioners' interest was aroused in the ASARCO problem in Amarillo when Commissioner Bill Butler pointed out last week that the area stands to lose a $7 million payroll if ASARCO is closed up.

In other business Monday, the commissioners declined to send out advance voter registration applications this fall to non-taxpayers in the county.

Mrs. Audrey Bruse, tax assessor-collector for the county, asked commissioners to approve letting of bids for envelopes to send out tax statements and voter registration applications.

She said applications for voter registration would be included in envelopes with tax statements, but would see JUDGE, page 12

Postmark Change Sparks Petitions

The Chamber of Commerce has postponed writing a letter to various persons protesting the loss of Canyon's postmark, but will circulate petitions condemning the postal change.

Eddie Knowles, chamber president, said petitions will be circulated beginning today at various Canyon locations.

He said persons interested in circulating a petition may obtain one at the chamber of commerce.

The petition will read: "Be it known that we, the undersigned, are opposed to the discontinuance of the Canyon, Tex., postmark on the outgoing mail deposited and registered through the first class post office located in the city of Canyon, Randall County, Texas and choose this lawful means of petition to register our opposition and concern."

Knowles said the petitions will remain in circulation until everyone interested has had a chance to sign.

In addition, the chamber will circulate a small typewritten list of persons to whom letters can be written to protest the postmark change.

On the list will be the address of Senators John Tower and Ralph Yarborough, Congressman Bob Price, Senatorial Candidates Lloyd Bentsen and George Bush and the Postmaster General of the U.S.

When the petitions are completed, the chamber will then write a letter and send both petitions and letter to the same persons.

The chamber board of directors voted to write a letter protesting the loss of postmark see POSTMARK, page 12

Or, A hairy lip bridges generation gap

Woes of walking moustache

BY CARROLL WILSON
I decided to grow a moustache.

It was kind of an impulse thing. I just got up one morning and decided not to shave my lip.

For the first few days, there was no noticeable change in my facial appearance. And, for those first few days, there was no noticeable change in the reactions of those people I happened to come into contact with.

But, after several weeks of ignoring my upper lip with the razor, I noticed a definite tendency on the part of many to react a little differently toward me.

It's become a curious phenomenon. In some cases, people look at me with slight amusement. This amuses me, too. But, some reactions have brought out an almost paranoid strain in me.

In reference to the former, There have got to be more wise-cracks about moustaches than there ever were about traveling salesmen.

A few of the more printable examples:

"What's that on your upper lip? Ants going to a funeral?" This elicits a slight chuckle and grin from the wearer.

"What'd ya do, swallow a mule?"

This, too, is slightly funny and the wearer grins.

"Did ya forget to wash your upper lip this morning?"

Another grin. And, then there's the skeptic. He can't believe his own eyes, so he shouts at the top of his lungs in the drugstore "Hey, are you growing a moustache?"

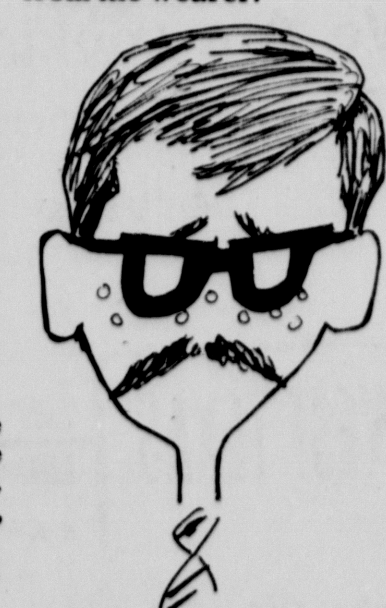

By this time, you are bordering on paranoia. Everyone, it seems, has a crack to make about your moustache.

Some are downright insulting.

"Oh, you're just trying to prove your masculinity."

"Whatsa matter. You trying to look older?"

There are a few, however, who say nothing. These are the funniest. Their reactions to your new upper lip are un-

ROTC Head Assumes Duties At WT Monday

Lt. Col. John O. Childs

Lt. Col. John O. Childs has assumed duties as new professor of military science at West Texas State University.

He came to WTSU following a year's tour in a similar position at Allen Military Academy at Bryan.

Childs replaces Lt. Col. Billy R. Smith, who assumed a command position in Germany.

A 1953 graduate of Texas A&M, Childs received his Army commission through the ROTC program. He received his BA degree in mechanical engineering. He received an MS degree from George Washington University in personnel administration.

Childs is a native of Jacksonville and is a graduate of Jacksonville High School.

He has served two tours in Vietnam, one in 1962-63 as an Army advisor, and one recently as a battalion commander and assistant personnel officer.

In addition, Childs has served in Europe, Washington, D.C., Fort Riley, Kan., and Fort Benning, Ga.

FROM THE CANYON RIM

It's amazing how preoccupied people have become with hair these days.

The young are trying to grow it on face and head. The older folks—many of whom are suffering from loss of it—deplore the long hairs.

The young identify it with the popular singers and TV personalities.

The older and more conservative seem to associate it with unwashed pushers of marijuana, radicals and revolutionists.

The young say it is their right to grow hair in volumes if they so desire.

The older generation have something on their side too. Long hair was first affected by the radicals and brought into flower of popularity by the Students for a Democratic Society.

When Richard Dean

Bridges, convicted marijuana vendor, was first arrested back in January he sported a shaggy beard and mane. But when he showed up in court his appearance would have stirred the admiration of a tonsorial artist. He was clean shaven and impeccably sheared.

When Richard Dean was nabbed again last week he was his old hirsute self. I can't help wondering if he will visit the barber before the magistrate this time.

If you think long hair and beards are the property of the radicals, forget it. Hair and beards are carefully cultivated by some of the most conservative people in America—the Mennonites, a prominent Protestant religious group.

The first beard I ever remember seeing belonged to one of these hard-working, God-fearing men.

Part of the reason that we of the older generation view long hair and rough beards with a jaundiced eye is simply because we resist change as a matter of course.

When I was a youngster, knee high dresses and bobbed hair for women were firmly condemned from the pulpit and at social gatherings.

The little town of Turkey in Hall County was incensed when an entrepreneur put in a swimming pool and one of the local beauties showed up in a bathing suit.

I was gratified to hear Lloyd Bentsen, Jr., Democratic candidate for the US Senate, mention veterans hospitals during a stop in Canyon.

Bentsen says he is for updating these facilities for the men who gave so much for their country.

It is about time. Casualties from Vietnam are flooding back to this country and some reports say they are receiving less than adequate care in the VA hospitals.

I agree with Chief Justice Burger that some reforms in the judiciary are needed.

I do not agree with some who advocate scrapping the jury system. I can see where it would be possible to influence a judge through politics, threats or money. After all, he is just one man.

As for myself, if I were accused I'd rather my guilt or innocence were decided by 12 of my peers.

Jim Frazine Is Arraigned On Pot Charge

Jim Frazine, 20, of 1801 Bellaire in Amarillo, was arraigned about 1 p.m. Wednesday before Justice of the Peace W. A. "Bill" Wilson on charges of selling marijuana.

Frazine, along with three other youths, was arrested last Thursday night during a drug raid in Amarillo. He was subsequently charged with selling in Randall County.

Prior to Wednesday, he had been facing similar charges in Potter County.

Judge Wilson set Frazine's bond at $10,000. He was remanded to Randall County Jail.

Mrs. Marion Higdon is visiting in Arlington this week. Her daughter who lives in Arlington is to undergo minor surgery.

Daugherty is one of over a hundred high school, college and medical students and teachers working in laboratories under senior research personnel at the Institute.

Each summer the 300 physicians and PhD's at the Institute, which was founded in 1898 to seek a cure for cancer, give students and teachers individual instruction and guidance in a research project geared to the participant's particular interest.

Assigned to Dr. Donald Hoffman, assistant cancer research scientist in the Department of Biochemistry, Daugherty is isolating properties of rabbit serum.

Daugherty will be a senior this fall at Canyon High School.

The science program at the Institute is funded by the National Science Foundation and the New York State Department of Health.

Our World

BY ANN BROWN
The "sacred cow" that probably inflicts the most heartache, suffering, and deprivation on America, is divorce—or should one say a kind of progressive polygamy?

Divorce destroys about 1 home out of 3, reaches its painful talons into almost all of the other 2. Grandparents grieve for beloved grandchildren lost by divorce. Other devoted relatives and friends are often permanently separated from each other because of strained relationships caused by broken homes.

It is no joy to look at all the pictures of beautiful young brides when one realizes that about half of them will have their bright young hopes and dreams end in a divorce court.

It is quite common to talk with young people contemplating marriage who frankly admit they have agreed to a divorce any time that either partner finds a preferable companion.

If young people knew when they married that they must either remain with their partners, or spend the rest of their lives alone, there would not be so many hasty, ill-advised marriages.

Dr. William Glasser, founder of the Institute for Reality Therapy in Los Angeles, insists that premarital counseling should be made a requirement for obtaining a marriage license. He suggests charging a fee of around $50 for a license, and allowing them to waive the fee provided they attend counseling services. He adds that "The dissolution of marriage as an institution will be a disaster for society."

It is impossible for any two people to live together in the closest of all human relationships, marriage, without friction. When problems arise—and young people rush home to pour out their tales of woe—which may or may not be true—it is difficult for loving parents to remain objective.

When the hurt begins to heal, the principals usually realize their home is more important than their pride. But who objects most vociferously to the reunion? The family and friends who love them best.

Every person has to live with his own decisions; therefore, he should have the privilege of making them. Granted, parents tire of taking in estranged children, and incurring the inconvenience and expense of supplying them with living quarters and employment, only to have them return to the errant spouse the next day.

But unless one plans to provide companionship during the day, and comfort during the lonely nights, one should not encourage the dissolution of any home. And people who have experienced several marriages are almost unanimous in the opinion that a change of partners usually results in nothing more than a change of problems.

Adela Rogers St. John is quoted as saying that the only real regret of her long and productive life is her marriages. She says husbands are all very much alike, so one might as well try to live happily with the first one.

The cost of divorce can be appalling in material ways—to say nothing of the emotional trauma involved. Many children are deprived of the necessities of life because of the increased cost of maintaining two households.

Women seldom find pleasure in preparing meals when there is no man to cook for, so children of broken homes are frequently malnourished. And friction between children and step-parents is not conducive to good appetites.

Parents who disparage the absent parent to children may convince the child that he is no good. After all, he is a part of the "no good" parent, and one is prone to become what he thinks he is.

Divorce does not solve marital problems. It does not remove immaturity, irresponsibility, or personality defects.

Marriage is a divine institution, and is successful only when the divine rules are followed. Any marriage can be a happy one if both partners will live in obedience to their Creator.

Lloyd Bentsen, Jr., Democratic nominee for the US Senate, chats with Roy Byrd during a brief stop in Canyon Tuesday afternoon. Bentsen was on a swing through the Panhandle.

Bentsen Hits Welfare Bill

Lloyd Bentsen, Jr., took a cut at the welfare bill which passed out of the House this week during a brief stop in Canyon Tuesday afternoon.

Bentsen said his opponent voted for the bill which he said does not have enough incentive in it to encourage the able bodied to work.

"I want to get the able bodied off the relief rolls, onto pay rolls and tax rolls," said the Democratic candidate for the US Senate.

Bentsen said he thinks the physically disabled should be helped to maintain a decent standard of living but says the physically able should go to work to earn their keep.

He noted that a mother of four in New York City can draw more welfare than a Texas woman with four children making $7,000 a year.

He said the new welfare law would double the cost of welfare.

Bentsen said something should be done to improve Veterans Hospitals. He declared that wounded near the front in Vietnam have better hospital care than they can receive in the States in some veterans hospitals.

He commented on Chief Justice Burger's talk on judiciary reforms saying he has been for judiciary reforms for many years.

Bentsen said something needs to be done about the economy noting that his country has the highest interest rates since the Civil War and the "tightest money in my business lifetime." He said the average investor has lost $8,000 in the past 18 months.

Turning to the plight of small towns which are losing population, the candidate said he proposes a 10 percent tax credit as incentive for manufacturers to settle in small towns. The goal is to slow the migration of population from small towns to great population centers, he asserted.

Young Scout To Philmont

Todd Clodfelter, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Clodfelter, left Sunday for a three-week stay at Philmont Ranch undergoing junior leadership training.

Todd is a member of Troop 31, sponsored by the First Methodist church here. He is also a member of the Kwahadi Indian Dancers.

Miss Texas To Highlight WTSU Pageant

Miss Texas of 1970-71, Phyllis George, will make an appearance at the Miss WTSU Beauty Pageant Oct. 16, and will work behind the scenes with the girls in the pageant, according to Gary Cook, member of the Miss WTSU committee and former president of the WTSU Students' Association.

Miss George will not appear until the formal pageant which is scheduled for 8 p.m. Oct. 16. During the day she will be helping the contestants and giving advice on how to act during the pageant, Cook said.

The Miss WTSU Pageant was planned last spring by members of the Student Senate. It will replace the former Homecoming Queen election. Miss WTSU will reign over Homecoming activities.

The ten finalists will appear at the formal pageant in swim suit, evening gown and talent competition.

Earlier in the day, all contestants will appear in evening gown competition at a pep rally. At 2 p.m., the contestants will compete in the bathing suit category which is closed to the public. At 3:30 p.m., the contestants, wearing street clothes, will be interviewed.

The master of ceremonies for the pageant is still not definite. Possible M.C.'s are Eddy Thomas, Steve Oakley, Jim Holston, Pappy Watson or someone from the WTSU speech department.

Two judges are definite for the pageant. Those include Mrs. John Pitts of Perryton and Peggy McMahon, a judge at the Miss Texas Pageant and Miss Texas' champion.

Two others have not given a definite answer, but are tentatively planned. These are Donna Axum Mutscher, a former Miss Texas, and a

Dr. Hofstead.

A fifth judge has not yet been selected.

More plans will be made at the next meeting of the Miss WTSU committee scheduled for Wednesday.

Members of the committee are Cook, Pam Wright, Carol Wright, Dr. T. Paige Carruth, Hank Brown, Kathy Brown, Linda Taylor, Carol Crain and Gary Story.

WTSU Cleared By NCAA Of Baseball Infraction

West Texas State University has been cleared by the NCAA Committee on infractions in the case of Mike Mitchell, who played on the Buffalo baseball team this past spring.

School officials discovered following the baseball season that Mitchell had accepted expenses during a professional basketball tryout. Mitchell, who was also a standout basketball player for the Buffaloes, was a shortstop on the baseball team this past spring.

The violation was turned in to the National Collegiate Athletic Association at that time by West Texas State officials.

Warren S. Brown, NCAA Executive Assistant, in a letter of WTSU director of athletics, Joe Kerbel, said "The Committee on Infractions wishes to extend its appreciation for the cooperation of West Texas State University in this matter."

"The Committee concluded that there was no evidence of a willful attempt on the part of the University to violate NCAA eligibility requirements by permitting an ineligible player to participate."

Performances of "TEXAS" are drawing large crowds nightly to the Pioneer Amphitheatre in Palo Duro Canyon State Park. The last performance of the season is Monday, Aug. 31, and there will be a performance on Sunday, Aug. 30. A total of 53,504 people have attended performances which are given nightly except Sunday.

Styrofoam Glider Almost Ready For Record Jaunt To New Mexico

One hobby may really catch on around here when a new styrofoam model glider is put on the market within the next month.

The glider has been developed by Canyon Plastics and is the first of its kind to be put on the market.

Jesse Jones, owner of Canyon Plastics, said the gliders will be sold in hobby shops in Amarillo and Canyon and will be distributed through Nelson Products in California.

The gliders will be operated by a radio control which fits into the front of the plane. There are two ways the plane can be launched, according to Larry Klebold, an employee of Canyon Plastics.

"You can mount an engine on the canopy and the engine will power it until it runs out of gas. Then it will glide. Or you can use a wench box. A nylon cord is attached to the glider and to a reel on the wench box. When the lever on the box is stepped on, it releases the plane. When the plane gets directly overhead, the cord will snap back and the plane will glide," he said.

Work began on the gliders about a year ago, according to Jones. "We drew our own pattern and everything," he said.

"The glider is a scale model of the Schweitzer 1-26 sail plane. It has a six and one-half foot wing span," he said.

Similar gliders made of balsa wood are already on the market.

"We think the styrofoam planes will hold up better. At least they have survived more crashes than the balsa planes," he said.

"The unique thing about them, though, is that when they are bought, they are ready to fly. The balsa gliders come in a kit and must be glued together," he added.

Once the gliders are in the air they will glide as long as there is a favorable air current, Klebold said.

"We have had a glider up for 30 minutes at a time," Jones said. "We hope to set a record soon and fly the plane from Canyon to Clovis."

Jones said they will probably schedule the flight within the next 30 days whenever there is a favorable day.

"We have applied for a sanction from the American Modeling Association for this," he said. "We have to have an official on hand if we set a record or it will not really be a record."

Dr. Val Hutcheson will be on hand for the glider's trip to Clovis, Jones said. Dr.

Hutcheson has been test-flying the craft since it was developed.

The cost of the craft will be $18, according to Klebold. This does not include the cost of the radios, he said. The radios will also be available at the various hobby shops.

Ken Flaniken, Larry Klebold, and Ray Meller look over the styrofoam glider which will be on the market soon. The glider was developed by Canyon Plastics.

Proposed CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

NUMBER ONE ON THE BALLOT (HJR30)

General Election Nov. 3, 1970

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF TEXAS:

Section 1. That Subsections (5), (6), (7), (8), (9), (11), (12), and (13), Section 1-a, Article V, Constitution of the State of Texas, be amended to read as follows:

"(5) The Commission may hold its meetings, hearings and other proceedings at such times and places as it shall determine but shall meet at Austin at least once each year. It shall annually select one of its members as Chairman. A quorum shall consist of five (5) members. Proceedings shall be by majority vote of those present, except that recommendations for retirement, censure, or removal of any person holding an office named in Paragraph A of Subsection (6) of this Section shall be by affirmative vote of at least five (5) members.

"(6) A. Any Justice or Judge of the Appellate Courts and District and Criminal District Courts, any County Judge, and any Judge of a County Court at Law, a Court of Domestic Relations, a Juvenile Court, a Probate Court, or a Corporation or Municipal Court, and any Justice of the Peace, and any Judge or presiding officer of any special court created by the Legislature as provided in Section 1, Article V, of this Constitution, may, subject to the other provisions hereof, be removed from office for willful or persistent misconduct, which is clearly inconsistent with the proper performance of his said duties or casts public discredit upon the judiciary or administration of justice; or any person holding such office may be censured, in lieu of removal from office, under procedures provided for by the Legislature.

"B. Any person holding an office named in Paragraph A of this subsection who is eligible for retirement benefits under the laws of this state providing for judicial retirement may be involuntarily retired, and any person holding an office named in that paragraph who is not eligible for retirement benefits under such laws may be removed from office, for disability seriously interfering with the performance of his duties, which is, or is likely to become, permanent in nature.

"(7) The Commission shall keep itself informed as fully as may be of circumstances relating to the misconduct or disability of particular persons holding an office named in Paragraph A of Subsection (6) of this Section, receive complaints or reports, formal or informal, from any source in this behalf and make such preliminary investigations as it may determine. Its orders for the attendance or testimony of witnesses or for the production of documents at any hearing or investigation shall be enforceable by contempt proceedings in the District Court.

"(8) After such investigation as it deems necessary, the Commission may in its discretion issue a private reprimand, or if the Commission determines that the situation merits such action, it may order a hearing to be held before it concerning the removal, or retirement of a person holding an office named in Paragraph A of Subsection (6) of this Section, or it may in its discretion request the Supreme Court to appoint an active or retired District Judge or Justice of a Court of Civil Appeals as a Master to hear and take evidence in any such matter and to report thereon to the Commission. If, after hearing, or after considering the record and report of a Master, the Commission finds good cause therefor, it shall issue an order of public censure or it shall recommend to the Supreme Court the removal, or retirement, as the case may be, of the person in question holding an office named in Paragraph A of Subsection (6) of this Section and shall thereupon file with the Clerk of the Supreme Court the entire record before the Commission.

"(9) The Supreme Court shall review the record of the proceedings on the law and facts and in its discretion may, for good cause shown, permit the introduction of additional evidence and shall order public censure, retirement or removal, as it finds just and proper, or wholly reject the recommendation. Upon an order for involuntary retirement for disability or an order for removal, the office in question shall become vacant. The rights of an incumbent so retired to retirement benefits shall be the same as if his retirement had been voluntary."

"(11) The Supreme Court shall by rule provide for the procedure before the Commission, Masters and the Supreme Court. Such rule shall afford to any person holding an office named in Paragraph A of Subsection (6) of this Section, against whom a proceeding is instituted to cause his retirement or removal, due process of law for the procedure before the Commission, Masters and the Supreme Court in the same manner that any person whose property rights are in jeopardy in an adjudicatory proceeding is entitled to due process of law, regardless of whether or not the interest of the person holding an office named in Paragraph A of Subsection (6) of this Section in remaining in active status is considered to be a right or a privilege. Due process shall include the right to notice, counsel, hearing, and all such other incidents of due process as are ordinarily available in proceedings whether or not misconduct is charged, upon proof of which a penalty may be imposed.

"(12) No person holding an office named in Paragraph A of Subsection (6) of this Section shall sit as a member of the Commission or Supreme Court in any proceeding involving his own retirement or removal.

"(13) This Section 1-a is alternative to and cumulative of, the methods of removal of persons holding an office named in Paragraph A of Subsection (6) of this Section provided elsewhere in this Constitution."

Sec. 2. The foregoing constitutional amendment shall be submitted to a vote of the qualified electors of this state at an election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1970, at which election the ballots shall be printed to provide for voting for or against the proposition: "The constitutional amendment relating to the removal, retirement, or censure of Justices, Judges, and Justices of Peace under prescribed circumstances."

Miss Lewis, Wooldridge Wed In Methodist Church

Marilyn Rebecca Lewis, daughter of Mrs. John Fielding Lewis of Canyon and the late Mr. Lewis, and Leslie Kent Wooldridge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wooldridge of Pampa, were married in a double ring ceremony at the First United Methodist Church Saturday.

The Rev. J. Frank Peery, pastor of the church, officiated.

Given in marriage by her brother, Lawrence Howel Lewis of Dallas, the bride wore a formal gown of imported polyanza over silk mist taffeta designed with an empire bodice of Venise lace, a Victorian neckline and long sheer full skirt swept back to fullness. A detachable chapel length train fell from beneath a self-fabric bow and cascaded into a full chapel train. Venise lace outlined and banded the train. The veil was of French illusion cascading from a small cap of Venise lace flowers.

Providing music at the wedding were Mrs. Glenn Dowlen, organist, and Michael Shapley, soloist.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Howard Foster of Tulia, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids included Kathy Brown of Canyon, and Nancy Wooldridge of Pampa, sister of the groom.

Candle lighters were Charlotte and Sharon Decker of Floydada. Flower girls were Janet and Rani Foster of Tulia, nieces of the bride.

Best man was Doug Jacobs of Liberal, Kan. Groomsmen were Dave Cornett of Canyon, John F. Lewis, Jr., of Canyon, brother of the bride.

Ushers were Jerry Wooldridge of Wellington, Walter Williams of White Deer and Kent Sweet of Dalhart.

A reception in Fellowship Hall followed the ceremony.

The bride is a junior art education major at WTSU. She is employed at the WTSU Computer Center. She is a graduate of Canyon High School.

The groom is a graduate of Pampa High School and is a junior finance major at WTSU.

The couple took a wedding trip to Red River, N. M., and the surrounding area. After Aug. 16 they will be at home in Canyon.

Hull Finds Life Aboard Ship Interesting

BY DIANNE BROADBENT

Attending summer school in a ship bound for several overseas ports was an interesting experience for Chris Hull, but it just wasn't what he expected.

Hull, son of Mrs. T. G. Hull, Jr., and Chris Blasdel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood Blasdel, were two of 85 freshmen aboard the "Texas Clipper", a 15,000 ton training ship for the Texas Maritime Academy, sponsored through Texas A&M University.

The cruise is a part of a training program for upperclassmen on the ship and is a recruiting program for freshman students, according to Hull.

"The academy accepts freshmen who will not be enrolled in the academy for the cruise. Upperclassmen must be enrolled in the Maritime Academy," Hull said.

Hull will be attending the University of Texas in the fall and Blasdel is to attend Earlham University in Richmond, Ind.

Freshmen on the ship were allowed to take six hours of college credit during the eight-week cruise. Three courses, English, mathematics and history, were offered, and the freshmen could take any two.

Blasdel and Hull both took English and history.

The eight-week cruise, which cost the boys $650-plus, involved stops at nine ports, Cork, Ireland; La-Harve, France; Hamburg, Germany; Aalborg, Denmark; Plymouth, England; Ponce, Puerto Rico; and Brownsville, Point Comfort and Galveston, Texas, Hull said.

"The freshmen spent most of their time on board working in the galley, going to class, sleeping and learning how to be mistreated," said Hull. "Mostly sleeping, though."

The 165 upperclassmen on the ship navigated and ran the engines, he said.

"The upperclassmen were in two groups, the deckies and the snipes," Hull said.

"The deckies were the guys that worked on the deck, the navigators and the first, second and third mates. The snipes were the engineers," he explained.

A typical day aboard the "Texas Clipper" began at 6 a.m., Hull said.

"A guy with a whistle came around beating on the doors, shouting 'Reveille!' He was known as the whistle jock. All of us had to act as whistle jock one day," he said.

At 6:15 the boys were at their cleaning stations, mopping, sweeping and washing the bulkheads (walls), he said.

At 7 a.m., the freshmen were served breakfast.

"We had to eat first. Our mess hall is called the 'animal mess.' That is because the freshman quarters were called the 'Zoo.' With 85 freshmen, you can understand why," Hull said.

At 7:50, the freshmen who were not working in the galley and the upperclassmen reported for formation which consisted of roll call and flag raising.

"Sometimes the band would play if they were really feeling good," Hull said.

The rest of the day was spent in classes, working in the galley and free time until 7:30 p.m.

"From 7:30 to 10 we had Call to Quarters. All the freshmen had to be in their rooms studying, sleeping or playing cards or something. Mostly everyone just slept," he said.

"From 10 on it was supposed to be quiet hours," Hull laughed.

"Once between Plymouth and Ponce, the guys on the other side of the ship raided us with trash cans full of water at two minutes till 10. They washed our rooms completely. The water was two to three inches deep," he said.

"The upperclassmen got a little upset over that," he added.

Each freshman worked in the galley for one meal a day.

"Those that had two classes in the morning worked the night shift. Those that had an early morning class and an afternoon class worked at noon and those that had a late morning class and an afternoon class worked at breakfast," he said.

While on the cruise, the freshmen were required to wear work clothes, which consisted of blue jeans, white T-shirts and blue workshirts.

"They weren't too strict on us. We could wear cutoffs and sandals or tennis shoes. But we couldn't wear civies on ship or off ship. Oh, the officers could. They could do just about anything," he said.

"We couldn't even have any civilian clothes in our lockers in our rooms. They had to be inside our baggage in the baggage room. If anyone was caught with civies in his locker, he would have to work off extra hours," he said.

"He would have to go to the boatswain who was the head maintenance guy. He would tell him to scrape paint or scrape tar or something minor like that," he said.

"They had extra work for all sorts of things," Hull said.

"Things like having your hair too long, not making up your bed or leaving dirty towels around."

"Once my roommates and I had a dirty bulkhead and we were supposed to work off extra hours. My roommates had to, but they never caught me. Once you break a rule, you have to sign a report sheet within 48 hours after you are caught, or you don't have to work off the extra hours. I just kept evading the officers until the time was up," Hull laughed.

Hull said that being a freshman aboard the "Texas Clipper" or anything connected with A&M was the lowest thing one could be.

"We had to call every upperclassman 'Mr.' unless he dropped handles with us. Then we could call him by his first name," Hull related.

"Whenever we saw an upperclassman that we didn't know, we had to stand in front of him with our elbows at our belt and our arms straight out and say, 'Howdy. My name is Fish Hull, sir.' Then he would tell us his name and we had better know it after that," he laughed.

"Also we had to get haircuts—crew cuts. Well, not really crew cuts. It was more like we were bald headed," he said.

"I'm glad I went on the cruise. When you live in a town like Canyon, there is really not that much to do in the summer. I went on the cruise because it was something different to do. If I'd passed it up this year, I wouldn't have been able to go at all. It was better than staying at home and working on a pig farm or something," he said.

Chris Hull takes a break after finishing his turn at working in the galley aboard the "Texas Clipper."

Their action was a result of an announcement by the local post office that Canyon's postmark would be discontinued on mail destined for out-of-town addresses. Instead, the letters would carry an Amarillo postmark.

Chamber directors said last week, though, that many letters bound for in-town addresses are also being sent to Amarillo for postmark.

"I think we're leaning over backward to get people to register so they won't vote," Clarence Beckman, commissioner, said. "It seems like the easier we make it for them to vote, the less they seem to vote."

Butler said the mailing of applications could in itself be expensive.

"I don't think I can see mailing it to ones who don't pay taxes," he said.

"If they don't pay taxes, I don't care much whether they vote, anyway," Beckman said. "I don't care about seeing people vote if they don't have any interest."

Commissioners moved to try to obtain right-of-way east from Hunsley Road to Washington Street for a county road. They designated the road a future farm-to-market program.

WT English Department Expansion Reflected In Staff, Course Additions

New faculty members and 10 new courses will mark the booming expansion of the West Texas State University English Department through the next two years.

Dr. Pat Sullivan, head of the department, said the expansion has become necessary to preserve a relatively small teacher-student classroom ratio.

First sign of the expansion is the hiring for this fall of eight new faculty members.

"Classes had gotten so large and we had not added staff to compensate for this for several years," Sullivan said. "We're really making up for lost time."

Included in the new faculty are teachers hired from Southern Methodist University, Texas Tech, the University of Denver, Duke University and Bowling Green University.

Up to this year, Sullivan said, sophomore English classes at WTSU have averaged more than 50 students. Upper level classes have averaged more than 40 students.

"This is really too many to do the kind of job we want to do," the department head said. "We think this new staff will make it possible for us to do an excellent job of teaching for several years."

With the new staff members, Sullivan said freshman English classes will average no more than 25 students and sophomore classes will average no more than 40 students. Graduate and upper level courses will average fewer than 40 students.

In addition to an expanded faculty, the department will offer 10 new undergraduate and graduate courses beginning in the fall of 1971. One of the courses is Afro-

American Literature, a survey of works by Black writers of the 19th and 20th centuries. The course will include fiction, poetry, drama and autobiography. When offered, the course will be a substitute for one semester of sophomore English.

"Negro writers have been overlooked on American literature courses until recently," Sullivan said. "We feel this is a course that has been needed here."

Another new course will be utopian literature.

"This will be a look at man's attempt to create an ideal society," Sullivan said. "This is particularly relevant in our times of turmoil."

Another course set for the fall 1971 semester is history of the English language.

Other undergraduate courses to be offered include two sections of survey of American literature, advanced composition and rhetoric, introduction to literary criticism.

Three new graduate courses will be initiated, including studies in English romanticism, studies in 19th century literature and studies in Hawthorne and Melville.
